Nothing Like It.

No medicine has ever been known so effectual in the cure of all those diseases arising from an impure condition of the blood as Scovill's Sarsaparilla, or blood and liver syrup, for the cure of scrofula, white swellings, rheumatism, pimples, blotches, eruptions, venereal sores and diseases, consumption, gout, boils, cancers, and all kindred diseases. No better means of securing a beautiful complexion can be obtained than by using Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup, which cleanses the blood and gives beauty to the skin.

The Spirit of Indiana.

Logansport Advertiser. Labor, the world over, produces all, and yet is compelled to dwell in hovels and subsist on the husks. Discontent is the natural outcome which eventually will rend the country from centre to circumference unless means are found to more equitably distribute the products of labor by the abolition of monopolies in land, finance and transportation.

THE WAY TO SUCCEED.

Some Business and Social Maxims Which May be Worth Remembering.

[Puck.]

If you want to succeed in life, you must strap yourself in mystery. If you earn but $5 a week, you must dissimble in such a manner as to make people believe you enjoy a princely income.

You must talk about wealthy people as though intimately acquainted with them. You must walk down town to save money, and tell people you do it for the exercise, which you need because of your sedentary position, even if you are a bod-carrier in an obscure neighborhood.

If you can't get an overcoat, smilingly go without one, and laugh at the man who wears one, and say you are not delicate and the weather is not cold enough, and you're afraid you will be obliged to put on your summer underclothing if it doesn't hurry up and get cold.

If you can't afford to leave the city during the heated term, say you prefer the city every time, and ridicule the country as much as possible by saying it is only a bower of musquitoes and malaria, and that you can't get a decent meal there to save your life.

But if you can't afford to live at Newport or in the more fashionable part of the city, go and secure a den in Bleeker street or some other out-of-the-way place, and camp out for the summer, and tell your friends in the winter that you have been in Colorado.

If you are unable to secure a Derby in October, stick to your straw hat, and say that you intend to wear it right into the winter, because your hair is falling out, and the straw is so loosely sewed that the wind may pass through and ventilate it.

Then, when an elderly man asks you how much money you are making, out of idle curiosity, turn about and smilingly ask him if he thinks Tilden will run. Never answer his question, and, above all things, never swap confidences or become intimate with people you meet in a boarding-house.

When a man tells you how you might make a big fortune, ask him how it is that he is poor. And when he tells you how rich he would be if he were only your age, tell him that no one can preach success as eloquently as a pronounced failure.

If you incline to gambling, keep out of Wall street. Leave stocks alone, and go risk your money in a legitimate gambling-house. It is all gambling, and the same thing; but the regularly ordained gambling-house gives you your verdict right before your eyes, on the spot.

Never rush in to separate two men who are fighting on the street. If you do, you may be struck by both parties. Stand off and take in the circus. If men have sufficient provocation to maul each other, it would be cowardly and wicked for them not to fight. Anyhow, it is none of your business, and you, therefore, have no right to interfere and spoil the fun; because we have no more fun in this world than we want, and the more we have the happier we become.

Never land at a friend's house at meal-time. It will look as though you are trying to secure a gratuitous dinner; and, besides, you will not get a better dinner than you can buy anywhere for a dollar; and they may have a number of things on the table that you don't like, and you will have to eat them out of courtesy.

Never spend $10,000 to have your daughter taught to sing, or play on the piano, because you can go and get snuffed with the best professional living for $2. Besides, just as your daughter is becoming proficient, she will marry a dry goods drummer and leave you. After a woman marries she closes the piano for good, and stops singing in order to find time to talk.

Never order a Spanish omelette in a country hotel.

Never buy a dog from a boy you don't know.

Never have a picture taken with a cornet in your mouth, an accordion in your hand, or a fire hat on your head.

Never wear cuff-buttons or scarf-pin designed to show your calling.

An American Steamship Line.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 4.—President Henry D. Welsh, of the American Steamship Company, in speaking of the Line, states that the subject of devising means by which the running of the vessels can be put on a paying basis is now under consideration. "It can positively be stated," continued Mr. Welsh, "that the American Line will not be abandoned. We are simply looking around for some means by which the ships can be made to pay and the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is the principal owner in the Company, has been paying the losses for some years and naturally wants a change."

A Curious Allegation.

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 4.—W. Brown, Superintendent of the County Alms-House, has been arrested, charged with inhumanity to Mrs. Thompson, who was visiting Julia Hill, a dying consumptive girl. Julia Hill had taken a notion to make her own shroud, and begged the lady to purchase the material necessary. Mrs. Thompson did so, and, while showing Julia how to cut out the shroud, she alleges that she was seized by the Superintendent and struck senseless. Brown denies the allegation, and says the patient was intoxicated, disturbing the patients and dangerously exciting the dying girl. He has always been considered a kind and humane guardian.

The Milwaukee Fire Bugs.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 4.—Fire bugs attempted the destruction of Adolph Heller's extensive sausage factory. The two upper stories were badly gutted, containing about 25,000 pounds of sausage meat. The entire work was damaged to the extent of $25,000. There is an insurance of $22,000 upon the building and contents in Eastern companies.

A Dangerous Counterfeit.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Secret Service Division of the Treasury have received specimens of a very dangerous five-dollar counterfeit gold coin, bearing date of 1893, and which is believed to be in circulation in Chicago and Western cities.

Pretty Catechals.

[Detroit Free Press "Household."] Pretty catechals are made of paper fans, with the rivet which holds the sticks together withdrawn and a cord substituted. The fan is drawn together and one stick lapped upon the other and fastened, thus making a cone-shaped receptacle. A cornucopia of coarse, striped paper is fitted into this, and it is then passed in and out between the sticks forming bows in front. A ribbon loop is attached by which to suspend the catechal.

For Anti-Cremationists.

[Chicago Times.] M. Pivon defects one of the favorite arguments of the anti-cremationists, if his argument is founded on well-ascertained facts, by declaring that all poisons which can be detected in a body can be as readily discovered in the ashes, so that, in case of suspected crime, the cards of justice would not be presented by cremation.
